MOVING PICTURE FUND.

Bulletin No. 7.

Our friends have been taking things easy during the past month. A number of our State Treasurers have been slow in rounding up and forwarding funds, or else I would have a different story to tell you. Many of them are teachers and probably will lay the blame to the rush of work at the opening of the school year. Nevertheless, the fund is creeping gradually forward, and we are satisfied with the respectable increase made since last bulletin report.

The status quo among the State leaders remains the same. Maryland—thanks to the new State Treasurer, Mr. Faupel, has entered into the list of producing States. New York made the greatest increase during the month, sending $116.24, besides adding several names upon the Roll of Honor for sums varying from $5 to $25. Treasurer Pach's report for New York shows how Mrs. Nelson made things hum in Buffalo, while the New York Societies have been active with assistance in the collection work. I notice missing from the list the wealthy Union League and the Hebrew Congregation. Jewish people as a rule are generally active in philanthropic work, and I hope these two deaf associations—the richest in the country—may yet prove themselves true to their race.

The New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania Associations are each reported to have contributed ten dollars to the fund. From Mr. Francis P. Gibson, I learn that Chicago Division No. 1, N. F. S. D., decided to donate the proceeds (estimated at twenty-five dollars) from its recent Moving Picture Seance to the fund, a noteworthy example which Los Angeles people may emulate on October 31st, when they give a similar entertainment, exhibiting in addition to the Jones and Fanwood films two new experimental films made by the Los Angeles inventor, Mr. Fritz. Those films depict three of our handsome young ladies—Miss Roy, of California; Miss Miller, of Kentucky; and Miss Duffy, of Colorado; reciting in concert two poems, one on the Gallaudet Monument written by Mrs. Peet, and the other on "Club Amapola," which was rendered at the fifth anniversary of this club last April. Mr. Fritz declares by the time he makes his next film he will have mastered all defects and the art of regulating people's speed and distance, the two cardinal points successfully to take pictures.

Since publicity has been given remarks made by me at Colorado Springs about a certain moving picture concern, recognizing the superior ability of deaf-mutes to act for motion picture having made a tentative proposal to engage a few to take up the pantomimic parts, a number of "stage struck" artists have sprung up seeking engagements in this new field of occupation open to the deaf. I regret to say my influence does not extend so far as to be in a position to help any of those who have applied to me.

President Hanson has been sent a statement from the National Bank of Ocean Park, Cal., showing how the money is invested to date, being witnessed and signed by H. L. Terry, N. A. D. member. As an additional precaution, I have taken the initiative in the matter of arranging to give bonds.

Mr. Frank A. Johnson takes Rev.

Flick's place as Treasurer for Illinois. Mr. Johnson never stops at anything.

Miss Bartlett at the last moment found herself unable to serve for West Virginia, and Mr. C. D. Seaton has kindly consented to take up the work—writing "it is a shame if West Virginia doesn't send a large amount."

The Report of the Committee on Federation.

EDITOR DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL:

—In consideration of the discussion that has been going on in regard to the report of the Committee on Federation, which was adopted at the Colorado Convention, I feel called upon to make a statement as to my connection with the report and my attitude toward it. I am the more impelled to this action for the reason that one who was present at the Convention told me that he saw one of the champions of federation trying to influence voters by using my name as that of one who had approved the report. I would fain believe that the person who did this acted in all sincerity and fully believed what he asserted. All the same, there was not an atom of truth in it. Not only did I never approve the report, but I never saw it, and was therefore given no opportunity to approve or disapprove.

A few months after the Norfolk Convention, I received from the Chairman of the Committee on Federation an outline of the proposed plan of federation, with the request that I examine it, write down criticisms and suggestions, and then forward it to one of my colleagues on the Committee. I did so. That was the last I saw or heard of the matter. Though more than two years elapsed from that time to the meeting at Colorado Springs, I was given no further opportunity of considering the matter. I never knew what the views of my colleagues were, and had no opportunity to approve or disapprove the report before it was presented.

When the Committee on Federation was appointed at the Norfolk Convention, I believe that the general understanding was that the Committee should discuss the subject long and carefully and finally agree upon a report to be submitted at Colorado Springs. Why this was not done, I do not know. I know only that it was not done.

From the accounts I have received of the proceedings at Colorado Springs, I infer that the question of federation received scant attention. Debate was limited, and the report was, after a fashion, railroaded through.

The question of federation is one that vitally affects the future welfare of the N. A. D. As such it merited the most careful consideration of the Committee appointed at Norfolk and of the Convention to which the report was submitted. As a member of that Committee, I feel bound to protest against the manner in which the subject was handled.

When I was appointed a member of the Committee on Federation, I had no definite views in regard to the matter. Later I read and studied the various plans and arguments advanced and formed my own conclusions, with the result that I am now entirely opposed to the scheme of Federation as a solution of the question of a Greater N. A. D. The Federation plan of organization is, at best, loose and uncertain. It has been tried among nations, with unsatisfactory results. The ancient Greek states tried it and failed. Our Thirteen Colonies tried it, only to abandon it for our present Constitution. The German Confederation is a more modern instance. It was only when the German States were unified after the Franco-Prussian war that Germany became a really great and homogeneous nation.

I understand that the report of the Committee, as adopted, provides that the plan of Federation shall go into effect as soon as nine associations have accepted it. Seeing that there are about twenty-five or thirty associations eligible, to allow only nine to determine the question, is a subversion of the idea of majority rule among a free people.

The question has also been raised whether the Federation plan is not, in effect, in the nature of an amendment to the Constitution of the N. A. D. and as such should have been published at least thirty days before the meeting at Colorado Springs, and on the final vote should have had a majority of two-thirds. But this is a constitutional question, and I will leave it to legal luminaries to decide.

All in all, however, I take the stand that the question of Federation was not handled as it should have been, and I hope that in one way or another it will find its way to effect brought up again opportunity will be given to the deaf of the country to express themselves freely and fully on the subject.

Yours respectfully,
J. L. SMITH.

ROWEN.

The last chapter closed with the dramatic and thrilling scene wherein George William, assisted by Mr. Wright, of Seattle, kicked the Rev. Mr. Hasenstab off the scenery and the first meeting adjourned.

Harkening to the cry of the inner man the delegates hot-footed it for the hotels and restaurants—that is, after Mr. Pach had asked them to "look pleasant, please," and mugged them en masse. Falling in with Mr. Carrell, of Texas, I accompanied him to a restaurant around the corner that was conducted on "the way mother used to make" style. I had never seen this particular grub dispensary. There were three carpeted and curtain-hung parlors about on a level with the ground, and you were asked if you would have pork or pig, tea, coffee or milk, apple pie with one or two crusts, and your dinner was served forthwith by boxmen ladies with dispatch. At the Alamo the Hanson-Veditz sentiment did not seem so overpowering, but before we had been in this restaurant for five minutes it was full to overflowing, and it was all Hanson. I felt like an angel in a strange land. A lady came and sat opposite me. I had never met her before. She looked me over, then turned to Carrell and said: "We beat them!" Carrell remarked that the fight was not yet over; to which she retorted: "But we drew first blood." Hasenstab must have bled. That was the talk all through the three rooms. And, Mabel Lulu, you know the Veditz-Hanson crowd were above vile politics.

After dinner there was the meeting of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association, and Mr. Allabough presided with dignity, fairness and consideration. It was at this meeting that my friend, Mr. Veditz, magnanimously waived all outside differences and nominated me for President, and I tucked my little hatchet in my boot and "put my hand on my tummy" and thanked him kindly and sincerely, and accepted the nomination. "As no one else seemed to want the job," I was elected by acclamation.

The meeting was not concluded until we had to beat it to connect with supper. After supper, we prinked up, jumped into our evening clothes and beat it back again to the School, to attend the reception by the Superintendent and Trustees of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind. It sure was a gorgeous spectacle. The whole downstairs was packed tight with fair ladies in low necks and gentlemen in low tails, and as opportunity permitted we made our salaams to the reception line and passed onward toward the dining room. I was delighted to see Mrs. Hall doing the honors at one end of the table. She even winked and offered me a second helping, but I was so bashful with all the nice girls around that I declined. The impression this reception left upon my mind is mainly composed of a great variety of soft evening gowns in soft tints of pink, sea green, and robin egg blue. The composite face is young and charming. Later there was dancing in the basement. As we left, Mr. Veditz handed us each four street-car tickets. Local Committee entertainment No. 1. ## HARTFORD

Mr. and Mrs. George Mottram have begun housekeeping on Clark Street, this city. Mrs. Mottram is a bride of about two months, and is from New York. Mr. Mottram is an expert carriage painter and has held his present job for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Beers, of Bridgeport, spent several days recently visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Marshall, at Port Chester, N. Y.

Ex-Principal Warring Wilkinson, of the Oakland, Cal., school, was in Hartford Saturday, October 15th, a guest of Principal Williams of the American School. In the afternoon he called on Prof. Weeks. Some forty-five years ago these two were teachers under the elder Dr. Peet at the New York Institution, and both were glad to meet again.

At fourscore years of life these two veteran teachers are hale and hearty and alert-minded to new ideas. Of these two men as of many others, the ancient prophecy has been fulfilled: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." They shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the New Haven district "Frats" has completed its organization and will help in any and all good ways. The officers are: President, Mrs. M. M. Seaman; Vice-President, Mrs. A. J. Morris; Treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Royden; Secretary, Miss Marie Redaff. Other members are Mrs. Joseph Leghorn, Mrs. Harry Gleason, Misses Jennie Spooner, Annie Murphy, and Professor William George, of New York, gave his rendition of "The Bells," at a social gathering of the Cogswell Literary Society, Saturday evening, October 22d, in the reception room of Christ Church Parish House, Hartford. There was about one hundred and twenty present, some forty-five being the older pupils from the school. The room was packed to overflowing. The first real deaf-mute crowd we have seen since our Philadelphia days. Professor Jones' fame as a signer had preceded his coming, and all the deaf and their friends hereabouts were curious to see him. And he more than met their expectations. In both comedy and tragedy, he was equally effective, a born actor, a consummate signer, a marvel of expression, a very wonder. The New York Institute has two exceptional masters of signs, as it seems to us, Professors Fox and Jones. The only Hartford teacher that can compare with them at all is Professor Crane. H.

Miss Iva Lohr received about sixty pretty post cards for her birthday, October 11th, and Miss Ida McDaniel also received twenty-three cards on October 18th.

Mr. Robert Ritter, of Albion, Indiana, was in Piqua Sunday, on a short visit. He visited Dayton, Springfield and Columbus, and attended the church and seemed to enjoy the services conducted by Mr. Harley Drake.

Miss Blanche Coppock went home to Bradford last Saturday evening to visit her folks. Her deaf sister, Effie returned to school in Columbus on October 29th.

Mrs. Alise Bowers and C. B. Lipscomb, of Piqua were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Burnett, in Troy, Ohio, on a recent Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cory, of Dayton, were also visitors and all had a fine time.

W. L. Raymond, of Border City, visited with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Campbell in the country near Sidney two weeks ago and had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Sloukowski had as their guests on last Saturday evening and Sunday, Mrs. Frank George and children, and Mr. Alexander, of North Star, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Raymond delightfully entertained their following deaf friends, at their residence on South Boal Street, to a bountiful supper last Sunday afternoon: Misses Blanche Coppock, Bessie Riddle, Lena Miller, Iva Lohr, Lizzie Dawson and Ida McDaniel, and had a splendid time. Miss Julia Beckert was also here, but did not stay long with the company.

Mrs. John G. Miller, of Tippecanoe City, was in Piqua last week on business. She made a short call on Mr. and Mrs. William S. Sloukowski and enjoyed a good time.

Mr. Isaac Shimp, of Dayton, has secured a position in Troy, Ohio, where Mr. John Burnett works.

Miss Lizzie Dawson will go to Marion, Indiana, soon. If she goes home, she has not determined to return to her duties in the underwear shop. We will, with all deaf friends, regret to see her leave us from Piqua.

W. L. ROMANOFF.

CORFU, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thayer and daughter Olivette, of Corfu, and Mr. John Knorr, of Niagara Falls, went to Buffalo, to attend the latter's sister, Miss Lucy M. Knorr's marriage to Mr. George Daugherty, of Rochester, which occurred on the 22d of September.

While Mr. Thayer was on his way to the train to Buffalo, he was pleasantly surprised to meet Rev. C. O. Dantzer, of Philadelphia, and they had a pleasant chat.

Miss Florence Thayer, of Corfu, was the guest of her friend, Miss Anna Knorr, for a week, during the Industrial Exposition in Buffalo. Her niece, Olivette, accompanied her. While in Buffalo, all of them had a lovely auto ride of twenty-miles around in Buffalo and enjoyed themselves, and they will not soon forget their kind friends, who

Mr. Frank Thayer, of Corfu, purchased a farm of thirty-three acres of land with a nice residence, on a fine location. Frank and his family will move there to live as soon as they can, this Fall.

FROM NEW YORK TO PIKE'S PEAK.

CHAPTER XI.

At the banquet (or dinner) given in Norfolk, Va., three years previous, President Veditz of the National Association sounded the slogan "Pike's Peak or Bust!"

It is a matter of history universally absorbed by all of the educated deaf, that from thenceforward until the deaf invaders stormed the Alamo and clamored for accommodations, he built up enthusiasm, battered down opposition, and stimulated interest, until finally he beamed triumphantly upon the big and representative gathering from all over the Union that assembled at the first session of the convention in the chapel of the Institution at Colorado Springs. The forehead and the grouch alike must concede Veditz's ability as a clever organizer, astute promoter, zealous worker, and successful manager, of the greatest, most intelligent and highly educated assemblage of the deaf that the world has ever known.

In the tragic or melodramatic presentations of the stage, after a series of exciting incidents, we confidently expect a grand finale of red fire and slow curtain. So also as a climax to the strenuous and arduous work of the convention sessions, the scenic wonders, and the social functions, most of the members of this congress of uncrowned heads looked forward with eager anticipation to the ascent of Pike's Peak, where, standing amid the eternal snows, we could look down upon the world that lay beneath.

It is my province and pleasure to tell how one party reached the Peak, and to describe what we saw and record my own impressions of the ever-memorable trip—it is a trip, not a feat, as modern ingenuity and the cogwheel road makes it easy of accomplishment.

First of all, the tariff of five dollars was cut to four, and Veditz and his local committee deserve and have my thanks for the money saved.

To get to the station of the cog road, two lines of trolley and three fares are necessary. You pay five cents to get as far as Colorado City, another nickel to continue on to Manitou, and then you take a walk of two or three blocks and board a trolley for the Manitou Station of the Cog Wheel Route.

Perhaps some of the deaf do not see the reason for a cog-wheel method of propulsion. Therefore I will simply call attention to the fact that, on such a steep grade, neither locomotive nor car wheels could get grip enough on the flat rails to prevent them from sliding backward.

The cog wheels are the driving wheels of the locomotive. They do not run on the rails. Between the rails on the roadbed is a continuous line of rack rails. The teeth of the cog wheels catch into these rackrails and get the forward propulsion. The office of the other wheels is simply to sustain the weight and keep the locomotive on the track.

Those of the deaf who went up to the Peak (or returned) with us on that day, the tenth of August, are here enumerated: Dr. Thomas F. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Heyman, Mr. Alex. L. Pach, Mr. Samuel Frankenheim, Mr. Henry Kohlman, and myself, were the New York City contingent; Mrs. Pyle represented Omaha, Neb.; Miss Theresa Schoenenberger, Ashland, Pa.; Miss Rosa Halpin, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Earle Wilson, Arcade, N. Y.; Herbert T. Harsh, Illinois; and Misses Lillian Garnet and Linnie Hawkins, Kansas.

The locomotive that pushes you up the mountain is very large and powerful and has a forward tip, the cab and boiler being three or four feet higher at the back than at the front, and is at a startling angle to the truck and the wheels that rest on the rails. It moves forward with a jerky movement that gets monotonous and tiresome long before the terminus at Pike's Peak is reached.

We hug the side of the mountain almost immediately after leaving the station. We pass through Engleman's Glen, and gaze upon one of the beauty spots of earth. A stream of crystal-pure water winds round huge boulders, leaping now and again in little cataracts over moss-grown rocks through dells of emerald green. The canon widens, and high up on the side of the mountain we gaze with awe at the swaying pine trees that cling to the sheer walls and wonder how they keep their hold and marvel at their dizzy height. A verse of Hood comes to mind:

"I remember, I remember
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky.
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy."

I was so busy watching the ever-changing scenery that I failed to note the stops either on the up trip or the return. I know that we made a short pause at the Half-Way House, which is a summer resort, with cottages, bungalows and a fine hotel, situated among rustic scenery so beautiful as to defy description. We also paused at a big water tank to give the ponderous locomotive a deep draught of mountain water.

At different places I noted that the mountain side was barren of grass and tree and shrub and covered with a crumbled rock, very much like coarse sand or the pebbles of the sea shore, except that there was lacking the rounded formation. This mountain sand looked more like the fragments of shattered crockery.

The megaphone man called our attention to a rock as big as a house seeming to "hang by its teeth" to the mountain wall. Also the Plum Pudding rock, which exactly resembles a gigantic pudding.

At a height of 10,000 feet we looked across the unfathomable distance at Bald Mountain, a summit showing no growth of any character, simply a great mountain of rock pushing its way through the clouds.

It was quite a warm day when we left Colorado Springs, and several of our party failed to bring along overcoats. Our folly now began to be apparent. Up to this point the route had been sheltered by trees and was on all sides flanked by high mountains. We did not get even a glimpse of the plains. At 11,500 feet we struck the timber line, and beyond that there was nothing but rocks spread around everywhere, and my own opinion after viewing them was that the cog road in building had necessitated the blasting of this rock, and the contractors had spread it about with the aid of derricks, and saved the work and expense that otherwise would have been incurred. My guess was wrong. This scattered rock has been there since the earth was young.

Every one began to close the car windows, for we were getting the Boreal blasts that made us shiver. Coat collars were turned up, the lucky ones put on heavy overcoats and wraps and grinned at the foolish ones who were obliged to stand the cold in their summer raiment. We had struck Windy Point and were traveling on an up-grade that required two thousand feet to be made in a distance of two and a quarter miles. Almost before we realized it, we were on the top of Pike's Peak, 14,147 feet above the level of the sea. A long low building of stone is at the summit. It is a restaurant, hotel, curio shop, and telegraph office all in one. On top of it is an observatory reached by climbing two or three flights of stairs in the frigid open, a feat which few of us essayed on account of the storm and cold.

When we reached the Peak the sun was shining brightly. We rushed in to the lunch counter and warmed up with hot coffee. Then out again to entrance the vision with the most marvelous view that human eyes can see or mind can wonder at. Just then a big cloud came along and bumped into the Peak, and all scurried for shelter; for immediately we had a fierce blizzard of hail and snow, and in fifteen minutes the whole summit was covered with snow an inch deep. The storm ceased as suddenly as it had begun, and then you should have seen the sport. Snowballs were hurtling through the air, missing or hitting here and there some one in the laughing, dodging crowd. Mr. Frankenheim got his camera focussed and made a good picture of the deaf-mute members of the party. He also made one of the members of the League of Elect Surds, and to make sure of success bade all to wait for another exposure from a different angle. We waited and shivered, with chattering teeth, for this would be a souvenir, indeed. It was planned to have it enlarged later on, and framed for the lodge room. Alas for the frailty of human promises and the futility of mundane hopes! In his excitement he made both exposures on one film. Only the warmly-clad could stand the cold, so the restaurant was crowded, and the curio shop did a thriving business. All who could crowd into the cars of the first train for Manitou did so, and in about an hour we were again in the midst of warmth and sunshine and wondering how it could possibly be so cold at the top of Pike's Peak.

There is something ennobling in a trip like this, some subtle influence that thrills and inspires, that broadens and uplifts. He must be of sodden clay and sordid spirit who does not feel his soul expand, his heart grow bigger, his discernment finer, and his love for his fellow men greater, while breathing the pure air among these mighty mountains which stand as silent witnesses to the awful power of God.

Very truly yours,
EDWIN A. HODGSON.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

President Hall and Mrs. Hall entertained the members of the District of Columbia Branch of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association on the 26th ultimo. This was the first meeting of the Branch this Fall and a goodly number turned out. The literary piece-de-resistance was to have been "Conventions, by some of their Victims," but some of the victims failed to show up. However, Prof. and Mrs. Hall's account of the wrestling bout differed somewhat from the previously published accounts. It was interesting because it showed how the ladies viewed the affair. She also, without betraying any of the jealously guarded secrets, told something of the O. W. L. S. convention, and how it, owl-like, continued in session until something like 2 A. M., while Prof. Hall cooled his heels in the hotel office waiting for her. How thirty or more young ladies managed to crowd into an ordinary hotel bedroom is beyond our comprehension, and we have not yet been able to understand where the refreshments were kept before they were served. It is said that the air out in Colorado is very bracing; and perhaps it was the air that enabled the young ladies to the trick.

The next thing in order was to identify the pictures of a number of well known people, whose likenesses had been pasted on cards with absurdly dissimilar bodies. William Hohenzollern was depicted as a small child standing on a table, and giving another little boy, identified as the late Albert Wettin, a shampoo; a well-known politician was shown brushing his luxuriant (?) tresses; and so on. Mr. Hannan, our promising sculptor, penetrated the disguise of thirty-three out of thirty-eight personages and was allowed to carve a face out of a potato. He evolved an easily recognized likeness of Dr. Hotchkiss from the tuber, causing Dr. H. to remark that he was "some potatoes."

Refreshments, of ice cream and cake topped off the evening's enjoyment.

Miss Deborah Marshall is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Marshall. She is enroute to her home in New England from Kansas, but may remain in Washington indefinitely.

The father of Mr. Roy J. Stewart passed away on October 27th, after a short illness. The body was sent to Mr. Stewart's old home in Michigan for interment. The deceased leaves a wife and two sons, Roy and a younger brother, to mourn his loss. Both of the sons have good positions and, between them, they will take care of their mother.

October 21st was Miss C. E. King's birthday, and about 25 of her friends called on her in a body that evening. The invited guests provided the refreshments for the gathering, but the supply of family china was hardly sufficient for the emergency, which added to the general enjoyment of the affair.

In a previous letter I told of how some one had stolen William Lowell's chickens, thus removing a possible competitor from the pathway of Mr. Veditz. It turns out that, except for one or two that departed via the axe route, Mr. Lowell's chickens are still with him, and he expects to get more later on. Meanwhile, he would like to get hold of the fellow who poisoned his dog.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell entertained about a dozen of their friends at dinner Saturday, October 29th, the invited guests being Messadams and Messrs. Edington, Marshall, Pfundner, Bryant, and Merrill, and Miss Deborah Marshall. Mr. and Mrs. Lowell have a very pleasant home near Beltsville, Md., about an hour's ride by trolley from Washington. They have about 30 acres of land and Mr. Lowell expects to do some real farming next year.

St. Barnabas Guild will give a social in the Parish Hall of the Church of the Good Shepherd, corner of Sixth and I Streets, N. E., November 9th, commencing at 8 P. M. Everyone is invited and a good time is assured. M.

GALLAUDET COLLEGE.

Perhaps the most successful social event of years was the Hallowe'en party given in the chapel Friday night, by the students and the members of the Faculty with their families. Certainly it afforded more genuine pleasure than any party the historic old chapel has known in recent years.

The place was converted into apparently a huge barn, with straw piles and the odor of hay, making an excellent setting for the bevy of grotesque shapes that streamed in until the floor was crowded. Every character of real life, superstition and fiction, found representation, from the western plains type to the austere Goddess of Liberty, and thence by easy stages to numerous imps and other unpleasant shapes from the lower regions.

After the selection of partners by the novel method of pairing characters, such as Prince Albert and Queen Victoria, Napoleon and Josephine, the guests set to work at once on the numerous amusement devices provided by the Committee: a bean bag rode down a double line about a hundred feet long; a spoon-and-apple race between two young ladies, won by Mary Queen of Scots (Miss Edington); sack race for boys, won by Moore, Prep.; candle blowing contest, in which the leathern bellows of Arras proved superior to all others; a donkey party, resulting in the ascendancy of Miss Williams, Prep.; a fortune teller, and a fishpond.

The prizes for the most original costumes went to Miss Burt (College Girl, in a dress made of college pennants), and to Mr. Mosely (in a mammoth roll of brown paper, labeled "Tariff Bill.")

Refreshments of fruit salad, crackers, apples and cider, were served.

A very pleasing feature was the fun produced by the rather boisterous way the usually dignified Faculty members were handled in the melee until the unmasking. The fun seemed general and spontaneous, which piled up points in favor of the success and permanency of the affair. Since it was an experiment, and succeeded so well, we have every reason to hope that the Hallowe'en masquerade is now to be an annual event.

The committee in charge was: Mr. Nies (chairman), Messrs. Newman, Froelich, Sherman, Knox and Williams, Messrs. Arras, Hogle, Patterson and Fancher.

Mr. William Cooper, '08, and wife, formerly Miss Mary Jones, '08, made the round of Kendall Green friends the latter part of the week, while on their honeymoon. They will make their home in Chicago, where Mr. Cooper (we must quit calling him "Billy" now) is employed as an expert printer.

The masculine division of the student body is suffering intensely from frequent overdoes of verbosity inflicted by one Ayers, of Ohio. There is some talk of a vigilance committee and prompt action thereby if the lad doesn't boil down some of his narratives.

The mantle of ennui formerly reposing on the handsome shoulders of Dillon, '10, has found a new resting place on Lee, Normal, from Kentucky. However, "Matty" continues to smile, which is his saving grace.

Quite an interesting program was rendered by the Literary Society at its regular meeting, held in the Lyceum Friday afternoon. The change in time and place of the meeting was necessitated by the arrangements for the Hallowe'en party, which was also responsible for a comparatively light attendance.

The program "Lecture, Mr. Elmer, '11; Debate: "Resolved, That Trusts are a menace to the peace and prosperity of the nation," Aff. side, Messrs. Durian and Decker (winners); Neg. side, Messrs. Mullin and Butterbaugh. Dialogue, "Going to the Dentist's," Messrs. Lapides and Moore; Declaration, "Hohenlinden," Mr. Linde; Critic's Report, Mr. Bailey.

ATHLETICS

This week Gallaudet is celebrating two well-earned victories, something unusual at this time of the year.

On Wednesday another High School team was secured for practice—Technical—the first game we have had with them in years. Although but a practice game with coaches on the field and in charge of the teams, the supporters of the Buff and Blue were bubbling over with enthusiasm with the showing of the team that whitewashed Tech. 32 to 0, by far the highest score we have piled up this year.

Gallaudet 12 Baltimore City 6.

Saturday afternoon, on Gallaudet Field, another hide was nailed on our barn door, when Manager Anderson's pets put it all over Baltimore City College by the above score. It should have been a dose of white-wash, but an unfortunate fluke in the last quarter coupled with the alertness of Bean, the Baltimore quarterback, resulted in the latter's 85-yd. run to a touchdown, which was followed by an easy goal.

Gallaudet's two touchdowns came one in the first quarter the other in the third, by straight football, while means hard plunging and furious end runs. Conley made the first on a cross-tackle play from the 5-yd. line, while full back Jacobson found a hole in the line from the same distance. Roller got both goals perfectly. The forward pass was unsuccessful in repeated trials on account of a high cold wind; and two attempts from placement by Roller failed for the same reason.

Jacobson is making a name for himself at full back, having replaced Birek, who suffered a twisted knee at Baltimore last week, and will undoubtedly be unable to play for the rest of the season. Mosely put up the same old steady game at right half. In Rockwell and Foltz, Gallaudet has two ends that at last seem an answer to our fervent prayers since the season opened, and both were very much in evidence during this game. Foltz was replaced by Schaefer in the third quarter, Battiste, at quarterback, put up a furious game; showing the aboriginal fighting spirit of his race. His long end runs and excellent interference were a feature.

The Gallaudet line-up:

EAST WING.

Miss Maud Peet, a niece of Miss Elizabeth Peet, has joined the Normal Class of the College. She took the place of Miss Willis, who was unable to continue the work of the class.

Dr. Draper chaperoned another crowd of college girls on a delightful ramble through the woods on Monday last. In the course of the walk, the path brought the party to a high fence where the only way through was a narrow aperture between two posts. This was rather tough on the "Merry Widow," but after some toiling, all were worked through in a more or less battered condition. Now doesn't that look like a pretty trick on the part of Dr. Draper, in order to get his innings on the despised big hats?

Under the chaperonage of Dr. Hotchkiss and Miss Peet, the whole East Wing went nutting at Cherrystone, Va., on Saturday, and the outing proved an unequalled success. The day was somewhat cool, but the beautiful Vacation Lodge of the Y. W. C. A. was given over to the girls, so the less hardy ones enjoyed themselves, spinning yarns, before a roaring fire, while the rest scratched for nuts and shooed down persimmons.

Dinner was served in the roomy hall, and this over, a vote of thanks was tendered Miss Sayre for her kindness. A voluntary collection amounting to $4.10 was taken up by the girls to defray the expenses of opening the lodge for them. Miss Sayre expressed her appreciation of this, saying that the City Chapter had agreed to turn the Lodge over to the college girls, free of the usual charges, because of their zealous association work in the past.

Going home, a party of about twenty decided to "hoof it" all the way to Georgetown. They were amply repaid for the expenses in shoe leather and for the after-math aches by the beauty of the scenery through which they passed.

Incidentally, this visit to the Lodge gave the girls opportunity to choose the "Gallaudet Room." This room is to be furnished by the College girls in Buff and Blue.

The Hallowe'en Masquerade was an unprecedented novelty to the girls. A Cabbage Patch party had been voted upon for Hallowe'en by the members of the Jollity Club, but it was agreed to forego this plan in preference for the masquerade. The young ladies who assisted at the committee work for the masquerade were: Miss Newman, '11; Miss Froelich, '12; Miss Sherman, '13; Miss Knox, '14; Miss Wickam, Preparatory Class.

The "Rats" live up to their abbreviation by haunting the dining-room until the last morsel of cheese disappears, whenever that delicacy is served at supper.

The Y. W. C. A. held its first religious meeting of the year, Sunday evening, the 30th. The opening prayer was offered by Miss Eaton, '11. Miss Peet, in the absence of the regular speaker, then gave an interesting and helpful talk on "Duty." "Yield Not to Temptation," was nicely rendered by Miss Haywood at the close of the talk, and the meeting closed with a prayer by Miss Peet. J.

The origin of the gold leaf, like the first use of gold itself, is lost in the mists of antiquity. It is found, for example, in connection with the most ancient known mummies, having been used for covering teeth, tongue, skin, etc. Sometimes it also found on the coffins. Gold leaf was also used on the tombs and monuments of ancient Egypt. The process of making gold leaf has thus been known since the eighth century, B. C.

BOSTON

"Pressed Roses."

When?

Where?

By Whom?

November 9, 1910.

Boston Deaf-Mutes Society.

By the Ladies.

The insurgents are on top. The ladies, having become discontented with the masculine element forever ruling the socials of the Boston Society, have taken a definite stand in demand for suffrage. It has been granted them and their powers to entertain, with mere man to the rear, will be exhibited on WEDNESDAY NIGHT, Nov. 9, the date of the regular monthly social. All welcome as usual. The whole band of ladies looks like the committee, and are going to be something doing sure.

It had been unusually dry in these parts for an unusually long stretch. The drought came to an end Saturday evening, October 22d, when clouds let out their heaviest. During the downpour forty persons lit on the Bigelow home and set that peaceful abode afloat. It was a surprise gotten up under the direction of the friends headed by Mrs. Heyer, Mrs. Blanchard, and Mr. Fred Wood, as committee, in honor of their Pearl Wedding. Circumstances had rendered it impossible to have had the celebration on the exact date, hence the coming at the date was all the more a complete mystery. The rain had delayed the crowd and that, too, made it more favorable.

The guard stationed at the car station to conceal the crowd while Mr. Bigelow went his Saturday night's round of stores was standing in the rain when Mr. Bigelow passed and touched elbows without his detecting it. Some time later the crowd arrived at the house. At a signal took it by storm, right in they went without notice. Miss Ethel was hitting the piano fast and hard, while her brother by her made his cornet do full commission. Mrs. B. had just seated herself in the easy chair and gave a sigh of relief as she reflected over the week's work done. The storm in the hall brought Mr. B. to the scene, when he had just discarded half of his wet duds, he thinking the kids were tearing down the den, and in going to the rescue did not pause to think he was going in to meet the guests at his own wedding.

The crowd brought ice cream and cake with them, and the evening was spent in a pleasant manner long to be remembered. The committee selected Rev. Mr. Wyand as spokesman. After an appropriate address he presented the couple with a purse and the compliments of those present.

Mr. Regensberg of Moving Picture fame is slow to give those New Englanders who threw in $5 or more, a place in the "Hall of Fame." It is a fact that Miss Caroline Yale of Northampton gave $5 00, to the Boston collector.

The time of the season was had at the Old Home Saturday night, October 29th. It was a Hallowe'en party gotten up by the Ladies' Aid Society under direction of Mrs. George Holmes. Mr. Duran, an inmate, or better, boarder at the Home, got together his skill and put up an archway from the street to the door. The entire walk was illuminated with Japanese lanterns. In the arch before the door was an illuminated box sign "Harvest Hallowe'en Party." At the door stood an armed sentry whose head was a jack o'lantern. Several outer decorations were all of Mr. Duran's skill in carpentry and designing and commanded attention and admiration. The vegetable display was arranged by Mr. A. A. Small, of Weston, and was one of the finest to be desired. It consisted of 21 varieties of Massachusetts apples, gathered by him from hearing neighbors, 4 varieties of pears, several of potatoes and cabbages, parsnips, citrons, etc. The display was in the sitting room, and was sold at auction. The strong bidding evinced all of the size of hearts and feeling towards the Home. Mr. Lowenberg bought the largest number of varieties of any bidder and paid prices that made the crowd sit up. We believe the highest deal was for 11 Baldwin apples on one plate, $1.75 by Mr. Blanchard. The second and most interesting of all deals was 12 Green Mountain potatoes to Mr. Henry M. Fairman, for $1.55, and he gave them to the Home. Two heads of cabbage sold at 40 and 35 cents respectively. There were one hundred and twenty paid admissions, which with the inmates and guests put the crowd at 150. The time was spent in a social way. We have failed to get all of the donors of the exhibit. All present regretted to learn Mrs. Holmes had been critically ill for some time and could not be present after all her efforts.

Mrs. Walter Perry led in number and quality of jellies; Mrs. A. A. Small had the most entries in preserves; Mr. J. Black sent the cabbages, parsnips and 4 jellies; Mr. Derby, beets; Mr. Fairman, pears; Mr. Burrill, citron and pears. Among the seldom-seen faces was Mr. Henry Howe, of Worcester. The crowd was brought to the notice that every thing was up-to-date by the appearance of the hobble skirt. It was the property of the modern lady who did things for the Moving Picture Fund. The young people had their games upstairs, because they could stand the climb. It was those steps that betrayed the presence of fashion's latest creation.

The occasion brought a crowd to town and the gathering at church Sunday was unusual. There are several tales of getting home. And it was not our country cousins as the butt of the jokes. About the worst victims were Mr. Cross and wife, our aristocrats, by reason of their living in Beverley in full view and within a stone's throw of the Summer White House. Mrs. Cross got to Salem with the crowd from that city only to find the last electric departed. There was nothing for her to do but hang up for the night. Her faithful hubby had hit home before as a result of his catching the car she missed. He held watch and waiting meeting, all by himself, until two A. M., when he concluded "summer cars" quit running. He had forgotten it was winter. He had a bad night of it, as he knew not where his better half might be. He was up early and got his own breakfast and ready to start a search when she appeared.

Nashua.—Rev. Mr. Wyand preaches in Nashua at 3 P. M., Sunday, November 6th.

Providence, R. I.—Rev. Wyand will preach in the Union Congregational Church, Providence, at 2:30 P. M., Sunday, December 4th. SUB.

Heavy Work Done by Japanese Women

The heavy work is shared by women in Japan, even that of loading great ships at Nagasaki. This is a tremendous task. It is done largely by women who live at the Kogakura, Fukuda, Shikini and in the many little villages that skirt the town. At daybreak they are to be met rowing down to Nagasaki to take their full share in one of the country's most interesting national enterprises. The town owes its importance as a coaling station to the rich coal mines at Takashima and other surrounding districts, and lighters bring the coal alongside of the steamers.

Men and women stand shoulder to shoulder on barrels, baskets, boxes or anything that will give them a foothold, and fill a long line of baskets, each containing about two buckets of coal. These are passed to the platforms hung on the side of the ship on each of which a young girl stands. Sometimes there are five or six lines of platforms on either side of the steamer. Each huge basketful of coal is passed to one girl, who in turn swings it up to the one above her, and so on along with the swiftness and regularity of machinery.

As the girl at the top empties the coal down the chute she throws away the empty basket and with the same movement catches a full one. Above on the deck sit the tallies, one for each line, and every seventh basket is emptied the girls call out "Oi," and he places a mark on a sheet. Twenty marks count as one ton and it is estimated that 1600 tons of coal is a good day's work for a fair-sized gang. The girls continue at this task uninterruptedly and merrily from early morning till mid afternoon, in the winter's cold and under the blazing summer sun, and at noon they have a short rest and eat their lunch of rice.

In one day a great ocean liner can be loaded with enough coal to carry her from Nagasaki to San Francisco.

This is complete testimony to the strength and endurance of the industrial Japanese woman. A well known traveler in Japan recently remarked: "I do not believe that there is another body of work folk in the world who could have performed the same task in the same time and with the same ease." The old order is changing with great rapidity and under the new an important place is reserved for the Japanese woman in industry.

Where They Were Hurt.

It requires a student of anatomy to exactly locate the places where the following people were hurt, according to the newspaper items picked up here and there:

While Fred Kunsmore, of East Wind, Ind., was coming down stairs Tuesday evening he slipped and bruised himself on the landing.

Amos Mittlehose, of Valpoose, Kan., while harnessing a fractious horse, was kicked just south of the corn crib; he is able to be out again.

Isaiah Trimmer, of Dolly, Neb., was playing with a cat Friday when the cat scratched him on the veranda.

While Harold Green, of Bulah, Miss., was escorting Miss Violet Good home from a church social Saturday night, a savage dog set upon them and bit Miss Good four times on the public square.

Joseph Tuft, of Grimesburg, Iowa, climbed upon his house last week to find a leak, and fell, striking on his back porch, causing serious injuries.—The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Most women who wash family linen in public ought to be washing dishes in private.

NEW YORK.

News items for this column, should be sent direct to the DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL Station M, New York.

A few words of information in a letter or on a postal card is sufficient. We will do the rest.

The Memorial Service at St. Ann's Church, last Sunday afternoon, was largely attended by the silent people who assembled from all parts of Greater New York and vicinity, to pay homage to the memory of the great and good men and women who, in their lifetime, proved themselves loyal and devoted friends of the deaf.

On the table of the altar were arranged the floral offerings, Bermuda lilies, white cysanthemums and roses, fragrant tributes to the memory and worth of departed friends. The tablets on the walls were wreathed with smilax and cut flowers.

The service followed the order of Evening Prayer. Rev. Mr. Keiser took the opening part of the service, the vested choir giving the responses. In clear, graphic signs, Rev. Dr. Chamberlain read the lessons appointed for All Saint's Day, and Rev. Mr. Hefflon, of Hartford, Ct., read the prayers. The choir, led by Mrs. J. H. Keiser, rendered most beautifully, the hymn "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest." After a few words by Rev. Dr. Chamberlain on the significance of Memorial Sunday, Mr. Albert A. Barnes, one of the few deaf people still living who saw Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet and his co-worker Laurent Clerc, paid a beautiful tribute to the Founder of Deaf-Mute Education in America, and to Clerc, his efficient co-worker who accompanied him to America.

Rev. Mr. Keiser followed and spoke of Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, founder of St. Ann's Church, the Church Mission to Deaf-Mutes, the Gallaudet Home for Aged and Infirm Deaf-Mutes, and many other institutions for the advancement of the interests of the silent people. He was a most loyal and devoted friend of the deaf, and his whole life was one long record full of beneficence and rich in affection, unbounded by the selfish, narrowing limits of creed and race. God be thanked that in this self-seeking materialistic age the example of this, Thy servant, has thrilled and inspired mankind. The world is a thousand times better and brighter for that he lived and worked among us.

Dr. Thomas F. Fox next mounted the platform and in his usual clear, forceful style, rendered his tribute to the memory of Harvey P. Peet, the first principal of the New York Institution for the Deaf, and his son and successor, Isaac Lewis Peet. There were few present who remembered the elder Peet, but his son, Isaac Lewis Peet is still remembered with warm affection by most of the deaf. As an educator of the deaf, he was without a peer. His zeal and painstaking effort to impart enlightenment to them was oft-times exemplified.

Mr. Edwin A. Hodgson followed with an eloquent tribute to three deaf men, Rev. Job Turner, who for many years was a most indefatigable missionary and labored among the deaf of the South, establishing Missions which are in a flourishing condition to-day. His memory is revered by thousands of the deaf as a faithful worker in the Lord's vineyard. John Carlin, the artist, who rendered such efficient service to Rev. Dr. Gallaudet in the Church Mission to Deaf-Mutes and was a prominent figure in deaf-mute circles upwards of thirty years ago. William O. Fitzgerald, another man who left behind him the memory of a life replete with unselfish service to his fellow deaf.

Concluding, Rev. Dr. Chamberlain mentioned the Rev. Henry Winter Syle, the Rev. S. Stanley Searing, the Rev. Francis J. Clerc, and many others now at rest in paradise. It is well for us still in the land of the living to turn our thoughts occasionally to the great characters of the past, our friends, and know that the link which binds us to this world is very frail indeed. To cherish with gratitude the memory of our friends and benefactors, to learn by their example, and so live that when the final summons comes for us, we shall leave behind a memory of the good attempted and attained, of unselfish service to our fellow men, and a life that shall serve as all inspiration for the generations that shall follow us.

The choir then rendered the hymn "Abide With Me," in concerted signs, and after the prayers for those at rest in Paradise, Rev. Dr. Chamberlain pronounced the benediction.

American Church, where he was after a period of preparation admitted to the Diaconate, and recently advanced to the Priesthood. Mr. Hefflon gradually lost his hearing a few years ago. He has made wonderful progress in the mastery of the sign language, possessing a style that is clear and vigorous, yet withal most reverent when he is conducting service. The deaf of New York were pleased to see him present Sunday. Mr. Hefflon was for some time connected with All Souls' Church in Philadelphia. Since the death of Rev. Mr. Searing it is quite possible he will be appointed to fill the vacancy. He is well qualified for the post.

The many friends of Miss Stella Hirsch tendered her a "Pink Surprise Party," at her apartment, Saturday evening, the 23d. Those previously in the secret had quite a hard time keeping their purpose from being made known to Stella, as she is affectionately called by her friends, for she had arranged many surprise parties and well knew the tricks employed.

That afternoon she attended a performance at the Hippodrome with a male "friend," and, in the meantime, her friends assembled, awaiting her coming. To make sure of the plans not being foiled, the negro elevator man was instructed to telephone on her arrival. As soon as the message arrived, her friends hurried around into the parlor, turned off the lights, and began to count the minutes till her entry.

The darkness continued for some ten minutes, much to the delight of the young folk present. What went on during this interval will forever remain a mystery. Well, Stella arrived, went to the parlor to turn on the light, and was completely astounded, surprised and bewildered to see so many faces of her friends.

The rest of the evening was spent in games, handsome prizes being given to the winners. A bounteous repast served to appease the appetites of the hungry ones.

Among these present were: Miss Stella Hirsch, her father, brother and cousin, Miss Cahen, Misses Helen Vetterlein, Helen Schwartz, Anna Bonoff, Anna Lindhoff, Lizzie MacLaire, Margaret Schaefer, Annie Bernhardt, and Edna Bennett, Messrs. Marcus Marks, Emory Wolgamot, Monne Lesser, Harry Weinberg, Julius Seandall, Osmond Loew, Joe Peters, Alfred Ernest, Samuel Goldberg, Henry Plapinger and Samuel Cohen.

Miss Helen Schwartz, a fledgling just out of school, easily proved to be the center of attraction that evening. To quote the remark of one present, she was "as sparkling as champagne."

Credit for the success of the party should be given to Miss Helen Vetterlein, assisted by her mother and some friends.

On Sunday, October 23d, Captain Frank Hayden, of the Bronx Deaf-Mute Fishing Club, with a party of friends went to the Rye Beach on the motor boat owned by Mr. Erickson, of Unionport. The trip was enjoyed very much, although the water was very rough. Mr. Joe Graham won first prize for catching the biggest fish, and James McKenna won second prize for catching the greatest number. Frank Hayden did not catch many because he was too busy seeing to the comfort of the party. They were photographed at different places they stopped by Mr. Patrick Murphy. They stopped at City Island for bait and refreshments. Mr. Thomas O'Grady said he caught four fishes at one time, and all believed him, but it turned out they were dead ones. Mr. Erickson takes great interest in the deaf boys, and through Mr. Hayden will let them know the date of the next fishing excursion: Those who composed the party last Sunday were: Robert Ryan, A. Smith, William Davis, Thomas O'Grady, James McKenna, Joe Graham, Patrick Murphy, Frank Hayden and J. D. Shea.

On Sunday, October 23d, the New York Members of the American Society of Deaf Artists had an unusual and interesting educational treat. Through the courtesy of Miss A. Foussadier and her father, they were taken through the work rooms of Messrs. Baumgarten & Co., the weavers of the most valuable tapestries. Mr. and Mrs. A. Foussadier explained the process and showed them how each step was taken in making the tapestries. Space will not allow going over the steps. It takes years sometimes to weave on a single piece. Sincere thanks are tendered Mr. and Mrs. A. Foussadier for their kindness. Those who took advantage of the till were Mr. Jacques and Miss Lena Alexander, Miss Rose Elias, Miss Ruby Abrams, Mr. George Kinsey, Mr. Meyer. Trips like this to the club will be given from time to time. The Society is now a branch of the American Federation of Artists with Headquarters at Washington, D. C.

Nominations for officers took place at the club rooms of the Deaf-Mutes' Union League on Thursday, October 27th, with the following result:—

President—H. C. Dickerson vs. Samuel Frankenheim.
First Vice-President—Charles J. LeClerc vs. Emanuel Souweine.
Second Vice-President—Wm. H. Farnham vs. Benjamin Elkin.
Secretary—Albert Ballin vs. Samuel Lowenherz.
Treasurer—A. C. Bachrach vs. M. W. Loew.

President Kenner declined a re-nomination, saying he wished to give his wife and kiddy a chance to get "acquainted" with him. Election took place in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, of Highlands, N. J., have been away three weeks. They spent eleven days with Mr. and Mrs. Eichelsler, in Worcester, Mass., and one day with Mr. and Mrs. Anton Wheeler, in Oxford, Mass., and ten days with Miss Annie C. Kogeler, in Brooklyn. It is the first time in twenty-five years that Mrs. Smith (nee Coppock) of Fanwood, has been in city and it took her schoolmates of long ago some time to recollect her face and that of her husband, who is a hearing man, but had always chummed with deaf-mutes.

That was a jolly gathering in the chapel of St. Mark's Church, Brooklyn, last Saturday evening. A series of Hallowe'en games were indulged in and furnished much merriment. Towards the close of the evening an excellent collation was served, and then a heaping big basket of rosy apples placed on the table where all could help themselves. The committee who arranged the evening's program and saw that all had a good time was composed of Mr. William G. Gilbert, William Moore and Miss Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander L. Pach were guests at the wedding of Mr. Pach's cousin and business associate, Alfred Pach and Miss Josephine M. Swazey, last Wednesday. The ceremony took place at Miss Swazey's home, 242 West 103d Street, R.v. Father Thomas Barry, of St. Ann's (R. C.) Church, officiated. The wedding breakfast was served by Sherry.

Mr. Joseph F. Simons died from Bright's disease on October 28th, after a long and painful illness. The Rev. Dr. Chamberlain officiated at his funeral in his late home on Monday, October 1st, a large number of friends attending. Mr. Simons was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simons, whose many friends sympathize with them in their sorrow.

Dr. A. Monae Lesser delivered an interesting lecture before a good-sized audience at the D. M. U. L. rooms last Thursday, the 20th inst. He kept the close attention of all during his two hours narration of "The Care of the Soldiers During War," at the conclusion of which he received a standing vote of thanks. Mr. F. W. Nubser acted as interpreter.

Truman Grommon, of Watertown, N. Y., who graduated from the New York Institution in 1850, was in New York this week, but has gone to Wilmington, Del. He looks hale and hearty at eighty-one years. It is his first visit to New York since he left the old 50th Street Institution, sixty years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. A. Little, Jr., moved to East Orange, N. J., on October 1st. Next year they will live in Maplewood, N. J., to be near Mr. Little's parents, who are very happy in the possession of a new and big bungalow. Miss Barbara Hutter works for them and is in fine health.

Rev. George Hefflon, Missionary to the deaf in Connecticut, assisted at the Memorial Day services at St. Ann's Church Sunday. Mr. Hefflon is a graduate of Yale College, and was formerly a Congregational Minister, leaving that body for the

The Clark Deaf-Mutes will hold their first, or rather Grand Annual Picnic and Games, on the Athletic Field at Ulmer Park, on Saturday, July 8th, 1911.

Altoona, Pa.,

Saturday, the 29th, the deaf-mutes of Altoona and vicinity gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Richman's residence, for a joyous Hallowe'en party. The spacious rooms were elaborately decorated, doors, windows, mantles, etc., being trimmed with cornstalks, pumpkins, autumn foliage, sheaves of wheat, and other seasonal products of the field. Lighted Jack-o'-lanterns were here and there among the decorations, and the environment was everything that could be desired for a function of that sort. The table was artistically decorated in a very elaborate manner, appropriate to the season, and very appetizing eatables were served. Games such as are played on Hallowe'en were indulged in, and prizes were given to the victors of the games. The enjoyable function will be long remembered by those who participated. Those present were: Misses Mary E. Henderson and Ada M. Parks, both of Tyrone, Messrs. David Singerman, James H. Butterbaugh, Carl M. Bohner, Charles E. Chatham, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Saylor, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Otto. We expect to have another party at Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Stevenson's residence on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Charles Hewitt, of Altoona, who was laid off about a year ago, has returned to Cleveland, Ohio, where he has got a job as electrician helper.

Mr. J. H. Butterbaugh has got a letter, which states that his oldest brother died. He is going to the funeral at Purchase Line, Pa.

News items for this column may be sent to our Ohio News Bureau, care of Mr. A. B. Greener, 398 Franklin Ave., Columbus, O.

Oct. 29, 1910—Mr. W. Lacy Waters, of Santa Barbara, California, who since the N. A. D. Convention at Colorado Springs, Col., has been visiting father and friends in the East struck this place on his return Friday evening, and was taken in charge by the JOURNAL man.

Saturday morning a short visit to the school was made with introductions to a number of people. He was then shown through the Columbus market, which was quite a revelation to him. In the afternoon the O. S. N. Michigan foot-ball game was witnessed. The contest, a spirited one, proved a tie, 3 to 3, much to the delight of the former team and its rooters. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Schory were guests at the dinner given in his honor in the evening by his host.

After it came a reception and social, the time being given up to talk and examining a collection of photos of California, and Santa Barbara scenes in particular. Dainty refreshments were served before the guests departed. Those present were Mrs. Ella Zell, Mr. Ernest Zell, Miss Ethel Zell, Mr. and Mrs. P. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Schory, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leib, Mr. and Mrs. Zorn, Dr. Patterson, Misses Lamson, Edgar, Buchanan, Bierce, May Greener, Dr. Patterson, Messrs. McGregor, Charles, Toomey, of Cleveland, and Ohlemaecher.

Sunday morning, Mr. Waters was conducted up to the Home for Deaf and shown what the Buckeyes were doing in the way of Charity. The place was a surprise to him, not having an idea it was so large and well arranged and such comfortable provision made for the care of those for whom it is fostered. From the Home, Mr. Waters was taken to Grandview, where with the Greeners, he was a guest of the Zells for tea. Monday was mostly spent at the School with friends, and in the evening he left for Chicago for a short visit to his uncle, and thence westward expecting to be back home October 31st. He was down at Middletown, O., with Mr. Joseph Goldman, earlier in the week, and taken to Cincinnati and Dayton to see the sights. In the latter place a friend of Mr. Goldman took them in his Auto over the city and he had thus an opportunity to get a good view of the "Gem City."

Glancing over the list of membership of the N. A. D. as published in last week's JOURNAL. The name Miss Ethel Zell is not found, though the states she handed over to the Treasurer of the Association an almighty dollar during the convention. Her name seems to be a hoo doo to the typesetters for it has been left out of items on a number of occasions when sent in. [We hold the copy sent and her name does not appear. It is up to the Secretary—Ed JOURNAL.]

No, Mrs. C. M. Rice is not "offering her husband for sale." As the types made us say last week. We are being twitted from far and near on the slip when it should be laid to the door of the printer. Change husband to household and leave out the comma after it, and we have what was written. Yesterday afternoon the first fall of snow for the season made its visit about 1:30 o'clock. There was quite a flurry at 4, which would have done credit for winter season. The Rev. J. M. Hunter, Curate of Trinity Church, Toledo, was present at the close of the Rev. Mr. Mann's service on Friday evening, October 21st, to greet the members of the congregation. Early the following morning, the General Missionary left for duty at the Chicago Mission, in exchange with the Rev. Mr. Flick.

Says the Chicago Record-Herald of Sunday last: "One hundred and fifty merry-makers gathered last night in the parish house of Grace Episcopal Church, Wabash Avenue and Fourteenth Street, yet hardly a sound emanated therefrom indicating that joy and happiness were reigning supreme. It was a regular monthly social of All Angels' Mission, the membership of which is composed entirely of deaf-mutes. The occasion was one of special significance, as the guest of honor was Rev. Austin W. Mann, of Cleveland, Ohio, who organized the mission in 1875, but left Chicago two years ago, to take charge of the missions of the Middle West. The scene at the social was unique. Rev. Mr. Mann occupied the center of an interested group and entertained the mission members "telling stories." Mr. Mann will preach to the mission this afternoon at Grace Church.

Cardington, a small town, north of Columbus, recently had three unwelcome visitors, who sought to make a living by playing the deaf and dumb dodge. One of them came to the house of Mr. and Mrs. George Gompf, who are both deaf, and handed Mr. Gompf a slip of paper on which was written a lament and asking for aid. After reading it, Mrs. Gompf asked the fellow in signs if he was a mute? This made his face become the color of a beet. He then pulled out a tablet and pencil and handed them to her. Mrs. Gompf, then in writing again, inquired if he was deaf? At this he beat a hasty retreat. The matter was at once reported to the Mayor, who sent an officer after the fellow. The officer informed Mrs. Gompf that three pretending to be deaf men, had been doing the town for a week, and had reaped quite a harvest from the citizens on their pretenses. The officer did not know, till informed by Mrs. Gompf, that they were impostors as they were able bodied and well dressed.

Mrs. L. W. Freese, of Bellaire, with her daughter Mae, has been in Cardington since the latter part of August attending her oldest son Fay who had been in bad health for some time. He is now improving, and hopes are entertained of his ultimate recovery. He is a son of her former husband, Thomas Godman, who died a few years ago.

The secret is out. It was wondered why Miss Winifred Jones gave up her position as teacher in an Louisiana School for Deaf in the fall, and the following tells the tale:

Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Jones announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Winifred to Mr. William Cooper, On Wednesday, October twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and ten, Portsmouth, Ohio.

At Home, after November the sixteenth, 416 South Forty-third Avenue, Chicago.

The happy couple arrived here, Wednesday evening, and were guests of Superintendent and Mrs. Jones. The bride received her education at this school, and afterwards attended Gallaudet College, where she received her diploma a couple of years ago, and was then appointed a teacher in the Louisiana School. Mr. Cooper is a graduate of the Mount Airy School, and was a classmate of his bride at Gallaudet College, where first their acquaintance sprang up. He is a printer by trade and has a sit in Chicago. They left here, Thursday evening, for Washington and other cities in the East.

The Columbus Advance Society held its regular monthly meeting, Wednesday evening. Aside of the usual routine business, a hot water tank for the stove in the Men's Cottage was ordered purchased by the House Committee. John Davis was admitted as a member.

Mrs. R. P. McGregor left Saturday for Cleveland, where she will visit friends for a couple of weeks. Meanwhile her liege lord will look after the poultry and teach the young ideas.

Mr. McGregor, accompanied by Mr. William Toomey, of Cleveland, were at the Home Sunday and interested the people with a talk.

Miss Grace L. Wright, who has been supervisor of speech-teaching here for a couple of years, resigned this week, to accept an offer in a New Jersey School at a higher compensation than the State of Ohio paid her. We understand she was to leave to-day.

Miss Verna King, of Madison County, Ohio, has been appointed a Normal Student, the other is Miss Marjorie Tyler, of Clarion, Ohio. Miss Genevieve McCafferty, of Fayetteville, has been chosen matron of the C Girls.

On the evening of November 13th an All Star Vaudeville will be given in the chapel of the School for Deaf, under the auspices of several members of the Columbus Ladies' Aid Society. The proceeds are to be used for the Home. Curtain rises at 7:15.

The School's foot-ball team suffered its second defeat Saturday, in the game with the Plain City team. The latter members are all heavy weights. The score was less than that of St. Mary's, played the week previous. It was 17 to 0.

Miss Myrtle Wise, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. George Clum, was given a birthday surprise party one evening last week, and received a number of keepsakes as a reminder of the occasion.

Wilbur Buckingham has been added to the deaf employees of the Hartman Stock Farm. There are three there now.

PHILADELPHIA.

The changeable weather of Tuesday, October 25th, may have been responsible for the small attendance at the stereopticon exhibition of the Men's Club at All Souls' Guild Hall, and again it may not have been. Whatever the cause, only about fifty people attended the entertainment so that about two hundred more missed a fine treat, or saved a dime by denying themselves the pleasure of seeing the famous Passion Play of Oberammergau. There were fifty interesting views, and as they cost two dollars apiece, or $100.00 for the lot, the cheaper way was to hire them. Pastor Dantzer was prepared to give a very interesting account of the origin and history of the celebrated Passion Play, which the pictures represented, and therefore the exhibition was thoroughly enjoyed. We repeat that the illustrated lecture was more than we had looked for, and therefore a treat.

We must have been under the influence of Morpheus too long, for it was not until scarce a week ago that we first learned of the organization of a Philadelphia Division of the N. E. S. D., which has been dubbed No. 30 at the Western headquarters. Neither "hoss-cars" nor a brass band were needed to bring the peaceful Quakers together to effect their organization, and the absence of noise was more responsible than anything else for the JOURNAL correspondent's blissful(?) ignorance. From early information received, the charter meeting of the Philadelphia Division was held at the residence of Mr. J. L. Weeney, Jr., in East York Street, on October 2d, 1910. The officers elected are President, William L. Davis; Vice-President, Joseph S. Rodgers; Secretary, James B. George; Treasurer, Harrison E. Yoder; Director, George Cowan; Sergeant-at-Arms, Jas. L. Weeney, Jr.; Trustees, Wm. L. Davis, Lloyd P. Hutchison, and J. S. Rodgers. State Organizer, W. L. Davis. Medical Examiner, Dr. G. R. Hulsizer. Hereafter all Pennsylvania applications go through the hands of the State Organizer for Pennsylvania before forwarding to the Grand Division in Chicago. The Philadelphia Division meets on the second Sunday in the month at the homes of members until a regular place is secured. It has in view several social entertainments and benefits.

Another stereopticon exhibition was given in All Souls' Guild Hall on Saturday evening, October 29th. This time the hall was well filled, quite a number standing. The pictures shown were of a varied and interesting character, comprising some of the places in Vancouver, Washington, Portland, Oregon, and other place, where Rev. Mr. Dantzer had spent time during his early career. Also scenes in and around Rochester, Niagara Falls, and other points in Western New York, and finally the scenes connected with his career in Philadelphia. Other views were of the Ohio and Doylestown Homes, groups of Philadelphia deaf at picnics and at the seashore, scenes of familiar deaf and places, and the last was a large bust picture of Thomas Breen, labelled "Our Genial Tom." Rev. Mr. Dantzer again posed as expositor, naming and explaining the points of each picture, which made the exhibition so much more interesting. A number of the pictures, showing deaf who attended the exhibition in funny scenes, excited a good deal of humor and seemed much relished. A good many of the slides were made by Rev. Mr. Dantzer himself and are excellent.

We have not been disposed to offer objection when the printer boys put words in our mouth that we can not approve of, knowing them to be unintentional, but once in a while a correction seems more proper than patient forbearance. Now, in last week's issue we were made to say that the Merry-makers' Club held their anniversary banquet on Sunday, when it was on Saturday. Forgive the boys.

What are you going to do on Thanksgiving night, November 24th? After turkey, cranberry sauce, etc., the next best thing will be a laugh and plenty of it. Well, the chances are that you may obtain it by attending the entertainment at All Souls' Guild Hall on that evening. It will be under the management of Miss Helena L. Bowden who will do her best to insure all a good time. To do this, she has selected two comedies, one entitled "Forgiveness," and the other, "The Fate of a Bachelor Who Advertised for a Wife." There will be other features between the acts. Admission will be only fifteen cents. We should not only look to the evening for this entertainment but also regard it as a happy opportunity for spending the last hours of the national holiday together in sociality. And there is no better place for this purpose than at All Souls', as every one knows. Remember this.

We would also remind the local deaf of the moving picture exhibition in aid of the Home for Blind, Aged and Infirm Deaf, at Doylestown, in the Assembly Hall of Beth Israel Temple on Saturday evening, November 19th, 1910. It will be under the auspices of the Beth Israel Association for the Deaf. We hope that the deaf of Philadelphia will give this entertainment hearty support also. We are glad to have the assistance of our Hebrew friends.

Mr. Charles Roland, of Lancaster, was a visitor at All Souls' on Sunday. He was the guest of Mr. G. Warrington while here.

Miss Lydia Bowden of Marblehead, Mass., sister of Mrs. P. Bowden, of Mt. Airy, is visiting here.

Mr. Lewis Frederick, of Lancaster was visiting here on Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. John H. Keiser, of New York, will give a reading of "The Dead Heart," at All Souls' Guild Hall, on Saturday evening next, November 5th. On Sunday afternoon, 6th, Rev. Mr. Keiser will celebrate Holy Communion and preach the sermon at All Souls' Church.

Mrs. J. L. McKeehan, of Carlisle, Pa., visited her sister, Mrs. Harry E. Stevens, at Merchantville; N. J., for a few days a week ago.

A CORRECTION CORRECTED.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—As usual, where the management of the Colorado Springs Convention is concerned, my sweet friend, Jay C., runs bump into misinformation and it becomes my pleasant duty to set him right.

The "efficient" Mr. Kent who won Cooke's heart by toting his carpet bags to the check stand and then failed to turn up with the checks when wanted, was not "discharged" from the Local Committee for "efficiency," far from it.

He was kicked out at the request, or rather demand, of the other members of the Committee, and after he had done his level best to get the transportation referred to revoked by misrepresentation.

Mr. Kent, Cookey dear, had no hand whatever in securing this transportation. Neither did he have anything to do with the arrangements for entertaining the delegates in Denver, beyond getting an auto ride ticket for himself.

By the way, did he also tell you that he was one of those who wrote to Senator Hughes not to favor that $5000 appropriation, and which I understand now also your own disapprobation?

Well, Mr. Editor, Mr. Howard's animus toward the Local Committee is pretty evident by this time, as much so, nearly, as the nose on his face and that is saying a heap. In this instance he was "stuffed," and the stuffing seems to have been palatable.

What next, Cookey, darling? GEORGE WILLIAM VEDITZ, COLORADO SPRINGS, Oct. 25, 1910.

NEW CHEMICAL IS DEATH TO GERMS

ST. PAUL, MINN., Thursday.—Professor H. C. Carel, of the University of Minnesota, for many years head of the department of medical chemistry and toxicology and chemist to the Minnesota State Board of Health, has discovered a chemical that will revolutionize the warfare upon germ life, arch enemy of the human system, and bring success in cases where the physician heretofore has been baffled.

The new chemical, which he calls benetol, is eight times as strong as carbolic acid, and yet is not a poison. Never before have physicians been able to give doses of any disinfectant in sufficient strength to kill germs.

Professor Carel, in speaking of the new chemical, said:

"I am so confident in benetol that I am willing to submit myself to cholera infection to prove that it can be successfully treated with my discovery. It may be difficult for the lay mind to realize the great benefits of a powerful germicide which can be taken internally. It means that internal infection can be arrested just as effectually by its use as external infection has been in the past by the old agents."

"As a further illustration in another way, suppose a soldier, parched with thirst after a battle, came upon a pool of stagnant water, in which the deadly typhus germ was present by millions. He might dip his cup full of that germ poison and by adding one drop of this new chemical that water would become harmless and would instantly change from a germ poison to a beneficial medicated drink."

FANWOOD.

Truly the bounty of Principal Currier ceaseth not, for he sent a couple of classes of pupils to the Metropolitan Museum of Art last Thursday afternoon, there to acquire ideas for designs to be used in the headings, initials and tail-pieces of the next Annual Report. Mr. Bjorlee accompanied the male class on its trip by subway, and through Central Park to the Museum, Miss Le Prince, our art instructor going with Miss Hall's class of girls, who also went to visit the Museum. Miss Le Prince, however, met the seekers after knowledge in the large ball of the Museum upon entering, and from there guided them to the library, a spacious room, furnished with all kinds of books treating on Art, Sculpture and Painting. The library was tastefully furnished with furniture of oak, rubbed with rotten stone, and of modern style. This is the same kind of furniture used in the library at Columbia College.

Upon Miss Le Prince's request, the librarian in charge caused a dozen or more books relating to Chinese and Japanese art to be brought. These pictures, both original and interesting in their various striking compositions, were either executed with brush, pen and ink or by water coloring. For three hours or so, Miss Le Prince was everywhere explaining to and otherwise helping the students in their endeavors. Upon the conclusion of that space of time, the pupils were permitted to wander over the buildings for a while.

The Statue of Washington, by Houdon was the first object of interest on the first floor. The exhibits of Ancient Greek and Roman sculptures, and Greek terra-cottas, were interspersed with the works of more modern sculptors, the "Mares of Diomedes," by Gutzon Borglum, a fine piece of bronze statuary, being a notable example. The huge statues in the great central hall, were also admirable. Mounting the expansive central steps, flanked by the busts of famous men, the second floor was reached. The exhibit of metallic reproductions, including cups, knives, spoons and other articles of tableware, were first in line of vision. This by keeping to the right.

What might be called the armory of the Museum was then visited. This contained all known ancient weapons both for offense and defense, that had been collected, ranging from the great two-handed sword to the smallest dagger. A knight in full armor, mounted on a steed encased in steel, occupied the centre of this exhibit, and presented an imposing sight. Upon leaving the armory, a room furnished in the Louis XIV style was entered. It was indeed a sudden change from the rude implements of destruction and injury, to the dainty carvings and paintings on china or ivory, shown under glass cases in this room. Further on, daintily executed sketches on plates and tapestry were shown, to be followed by the Edward C. Moore collection of pottery, glassware and other miscellaneous articles.

The time being limited, the writer hurried on to where the oil paintings were hung, and was soon immersed in the works of Leitz, who painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware," Sargent, Carlsen, Bonheur, Van Dyck, Homer, Mythen, and a host of others. The ones that most interested the writer were "Le Bourget" by De Neuville, "The Horse Fair" by Bonheur, and others, the names of which are forgotten. A bronze entitled "The Old Dragons," by Frederick Remington, held a group for some time. Several artists were seen who were engaged in painting some of the pictures. It was interesting to compare original with copy.

On account of lack of time, the writer and the others could not see what remained, so they departed and made a bee line for the Third Avenue surface cars, and after about a half hour's ride they arrived near the school. The remaining distance they negotiated on the carriages Nature gave them—their legs. Mr. Bjorlee, who accompanied the boys, left for his abiding place after being assured of the pleasure and instruction that had been gained by the visit.

As to Miss Le Prince, too much can not be said. She was everywhere all through the afternoon explaining and helping in every way possible.

The girls of the Upper Classes last Saturday presented the appended program before the members of the Fanwood Literary Association.

READING—"Mrs. Julia Ward Howe," by Miss Lena Herschleifer.

DECLARATION—"Battle Hymn of the Republic," by Miss Lucille Leff.

DEBATE—"Resolved, That water travel is preferable to that of land travel." Affirmative, Miss Alice Tracy; Negative, Miss Barbara Spoehrer.

READING—"As Natural as Life," by Miss Olive Sprague.

READING—"Old-Time School Days," by Miss Delma Pearce.

READING—"A Father's Careless Teaching," by Miss Susan Adcock.

READING—"Huldah's Exciting Experience," by Miss Catherine Pederson.

DIALOGUE—"A Hallowe'en Surprise Party," by the Class.

The Readings were both original and interesting, and the arrangement in placing the life of the author before her work, the first and second features on the program being the cause of particular attention. Miss Leff's rendering of that stirring hymn, was both graceful and clear. The debate was well contested on both sides, the memory of the participants, Misses Alice Tracy and Barbara Spoehrer being noteworthy. They delivered their views with vehemence and clearness, the judges, Cadet Captains James H. Quinn, Harry Blechner and Miss Sarah Krumholz, having difficulty in awarding the victor's wreath, which was, however, finally placed on Miss Tracy's brow, she winning by a margin of two points, the decision being thirty-six to thirty-four.

The dialogue, "A Hallowe'en Surprise Party," by the class, caused mirth and interest from the time the first participant stepped on the platform until the end of what was the best dialogue ever acted for some time. The scribe, who has no difficulty in writing up the most technical masculine product, is lost in a wordless world, to try to describe the airy glidings back and forth, and therefore, can only say that as a dialogue it was above price, as a play without an peer, and that there was kissing galore.

The program being concluded, Dr. Fox, the President, gave the news of the week in the briefest time possible, and after the cessation of his remarks, motion to adjourn was made and passed.

Among this week's visitors, those noted by the writer are: Dr. Warring Wilkinson, Emeritus-Principal of the California School for the Deaf, about forty years ago a teacher here, who, with Principal Currier, reviewed the battalion of Cadets; Miss Harriette Tabber, Chairman of the Ladies Committee of this Institution; and Mr. Egerton Winthrop, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Editor Hodgson saw the aeroplanes in flight at Belmont Park last Saturday afternoon. He is now well posted upon aviation, and can discourse learnedly upon the difference between monoplanes, biplanes, dirigibles, hangars, pylons and starting bombs.

Prof. Jones conducted the Sunday morning chapel services, illustrating his text with a story of most interesting character. In the afternoon, Prof. Bjorlee successfully made his maiden effort in the ministering direction.

The drill last Sunday afternoon was very fine, the improvement since last week's review and parade being noticeable.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Witschlef returned, Saturday evening, from Newburgh, where for three weeks past, they have been visiting at the home of their son, Graham Witschlef, Esq. They enjoyed their visit very much, are both in good health and enjoy every minute of life at the Graham Homestead, No. 72 East Main Street.

ST. LOUIS.

Miss Esther Silver, whose ancestors are of Jewish descent possesses a handsome framed photograph of her grandfather, who is living in Russia. The most remarkable thing about him is that he is over one hundred years old.

Mrs. Austin Baird (formerly of Indiana), who has been visiting her sister in Colorado since August, arrived here recently, en route to her home. She was met by Messdames Sutton, Gilmore and Lohmann, at the Union Station. After spending the night at the residence of Mrs. Sutton, she departed for her home in Bridgeport, Ill.

Oscar Spotts, of Kansas City, Mo., is still in this city, being the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Berwin. He says he likes Kansas City fine, but the only trouble with the deaf-mutes is in Kansas City, is that they do not meet and associate like the majority of the local deaf here.

Emmett (the new-born son and heir of Mr. and Mrs. Burgherr) was recently baptized at the Bofinger Memorial Chapel, by the Rev. J. H. Cloud, on Sunday afternoon. The affair was witnessed largely by hearing people, as few of the deaf were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Joel (the newly-weds), who were married last July 20th, have moved to a new home at 3812 Laclede Avenue, where friends are cordially welcome.

Miss Annie Kruger, who departed September 18th, for Milwaukee, Wis., where she was the guest of her old chum, Mrs. Mary Pleskat-check (nee Burris) returned home Sunday morning. She remained there over one month, and thoroughly enjoyed her visit.

Jas. J. Daley, of Angola, N. Y., who is well known to most of the deaf in New York State, arrived here last week for a brief stay. He has been away from home since July 29th. He was a delegate at the recent Convention of the National Association for the Deaf, at Colorado Springs. After the Convention Mr. Daley continued his trip Westward to San Francisco, Cal., where he stayed one month visiting an aunt. While en route to the Pacific Coast he was an eye witness to a railroad wreck, in which a Pullman sleeper and a freight train collided. No one was hurt or killed. Mr. Daley is engaged in the barber and tailoring business, on his own hook. From here he goes home, via Chicago and Detroit, at which places he expects to stop and visit friends.

The St. Francis De Sales Society held their monthly business meeting Sunday afternoon, the 23d inst., with President Ellebrecht presiding. Most of the members were present, and a lot of important business was disposed of in short order. The Society is in a very flourishing condition in every respect. Announcement was made that two hundred tickets (printed in red) were ready for distribution for the great gathering on Gallaudet Day, December 10th. A grand ball will be given at Straussberger's Hall, cor. South Grand Avenue and Shenandoah Street, on Saturday evening, December 10th, and it is to be hoped that four-fifths of the local deaf will turn out in force.

Miss Tillie (eldest daughter of Rev. C. Schubkegel) is away in Granite City, Ill., where she is busy in the household of a certain minister. The minister's wife has been very ill for some weeks, so Miss Schubkegel is waiting on her till her health improves.

Saturday evening, the 22d inst., an euchre party was given at the home of Miss Annie Roper in Clifton Heights. The following person were prize winners: Misses Molloy and Steideman and Messrs. Steideman and Merrell. The next euchre party will be given November 12th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merrell, in Old Orchard, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ellebrecht and family have moved into a new home, at 2502 1/2 Howard Street. Mrs. Mamie Wessell still boards with them.

A game of baseball was played at Sportsman's park, on Sunday afternoon, October 16th. A large crowd turned out to patronize it. The game was between a picked nine representing Missouri and Illinois. Among the deaf present were Messrs. McCamley, Murray, Peterson, Gibbons and Miss Alma Newman. The proceeds therefrom are for the benefit of the school at 901 N. Garrison Avenue.

Binghamton N. Y.

This month is a fair one indeed. We have been having remarkable weather and the rain have been few and far between. Now is the time for persons to enjoy an outing and nutting too. The scenery on the hillsides around this city was never in more beautiful condition, with the autumn tints still hanging on the trees with its colored leaves. Such weather makes it a delight and a joy to be out of doors and bask in its healthful presence. "Every one who can, ought to be out and enjoy it while it lasts."

Mr. Samuel Hutton, formerly of Montana, succeeding in obtaining a job as a painter here, which he does not propose to keep long. He wants to get a chance in the linotype business and learn it thoroughly, before he returns to the West. He once learned printing at the Fanwood school under the instruction of Mr. Hodgson. We are greatly interested in his travels and adventures in the West.

Misses Genie Neff and Edith Gray are to be congratulated on having escaped from being "Old Maids." They are going to be a part the population of Scranton, Pa.

Misses Clarke and Garbett, of Scranton, returned home after spending a few days here.

Miss Gray came back from Castle Creek, N. Y., where she remained with her parents for two months on the farm. She enjoyed the pure air and fine prospects very much.

Mrs. Swartz, of Williamsport, Pa., who visited Miss Sarah Austin and friends, returned home last week.

Miss Anna Kermeflick, who has been kept at home by illness, recovered and will resume her work at the Dunn and McCarthy shoe factory.

We offer our good wishes to Mr. Fred Lloyd, who is going to become a benedict soon. F. H. K. Oct. 21, 1910.

The Hebrew Congregation of the Deaf.

Religious services of the Hebrew Congregation of the Deaf, held every Friday evening, at the Temple Emanuel-El, 43d Street and Fifth Avenue.

REV. DR. B. A. ELZAS, Minister.

Theatrical Notes.

Douglas Fairbanks will be presented at the Comedy Theatre, New York, Tuesday evening, November 1st, in his new play by Thompson Buchanan, entitled "The Cub." Owing to prior bookings the engagement at the Comedy is limited to two weeks, but negotiations are pending for another house in which to continue the engagement. "The Cub" is a comedy, with the Kentucky mountains as a background and with its story revolving around the efforts of a "Cub" reporter to "cover" an assignment among the feudists.

"The Shepherd King," with Wright Lormer, its author, in the title role, takes possession of the Circle Theatre, New York, Monday night. It has been several seasons since this spectacular Biblical play was seen in New York at the Knickerbocker, but its success elsewhere has been continuous. The play, in its general outlines, follows the Old Testament story of David of Bethlehem, the shepherd boy who afterwards becomes a King of Israel. The story is historical romance, set in a spectacular environment. Associated with Mr. Lormer in the cast are Charles D. Herman, J. Irving White, Marguerite Merriam and other well known players.

"Mother," the beautiful play of home life and maternal love, by Jules Eckert Goodman, is approaching its third month at the Hackett Theatre, New York, and interest in the performance is constantly growing. Miss Emma Dunn's delineation of Mrs. Katherine Wetherell, the "mother" is admirable and true to life, and Frederick Perry, James Brophy, Minnette Barrett, Marian Chapman and other members of the cast contribute vitally to a performance that no one should miss.

To go to Daly's, New York, is to go prepared to laugh, and no one is disappointed. "Baby Mine" is called a "laugh-tonic," and the name fits it. From the rise of the curtain until its final fall the laughter is continuous, and the last act, in violation of the usual rule with comedies, is funnier than the first. The cast embraces Marguerite Clark, Ivy Troutman, Ernest Glendening, Walter Jones, and other well known players.
